“Is Engineering for Males Only? Nope! Ute Coeds’re In,” by Sally Coltrin

It still seems to be a man’s world within the College of Engineering and Architecture; however, women are beginning to penetrate these fields. Mrs. Judy Brown, is the only coed upperclassman registered in any field of engineering and the only senior in civil engineering. According to Dr. L. D. Harris, professor and head of the electrical engineering department, there’s been two women in that field before, both graduating in 1930. Dr. Baker, professor and head of the mechanical engineering department shares that this field is one of the broadest in engineering and that there is no reason why a girl wouldn’t fit in very nicely in machine design or design products. While just a few are in engineering, more have broken into architecture. Five women are registered including Elsa Foss who will be graduating this year.
